Singular State of Mind Controls Town's People of Kisheneff. Province in Uproar of Fanatical Fury Against Jews.

Berlin, May 21.—The singular state of mind of the town's people of Kisheneff, Bessarabia, while they were hanging the Jews there about a month ago is described in a letter from a Jewish German of Odessa, received by the relief committee here.

"The excitement is intensified through proclamations distributed in the streets and the tone of the bitterly anti-Semitic newspapers. The Russians say to their educated and tolerant countrymen who urge keeping the peace.

"It is the Czar's will that the Jews be everywhere robbed. Orders have been given that we start again at Pen-trost."

"The situation has become all the worse since the important Russian papers have been prevented by the censorship from freely expressing their opinions. Their behavior, almost without exception, has been excellent. Unless the St. Petersburg government develops a more strict policy the events at Kisheneff will undoubtedly be repeated in other towns. As in indicating the complete disappearance of the best classes, respectable Russian lawyers are assisting the sufferers to obtain redress."

Inter-State Commerce Commission Is After Railroad Officials.

Washington, May 21.—A vigorous effort is to be made by the inter-state commerce commission to compel President Baer, of the Reading Coal and Iron Co., and the Reading railway and officials of other Anthracite coal carrying roads to answer certain questions, and to produce certain documents, which they refused at the recent hearing before the commission in New York, to answer and produce. The particular documents, the originals of which are demanded by the commission are alleged contracts among the coal carrying roads, limiting the production of coal. After considering the refusal of the officials to present the contracts to the inter-state commerce commission, the members of the commission requested Attorney General Knox, to direct Gen. Burnett, district attorney for the southern district of New York, to present the case to the United States circuit court, and ask for an order to compel the officials of the coal carrying roads to appear before the commission, answer the questions and produce the documents. Attorney General Knox, gave the necessary directions to General Burnett.

ANNUAL VALUE OF MANUFACTURES

Reaches Beyond Four Billions of Dollars in International Commerce. Of This, U. S. Represents Ten Percent.

Four billions of dollars is the estimated annual value of the manufactures which enter into the international commerce of the world. Of this sum, the United States furnishes 400 millions, or 10 per cent of the total. This is the conclusion of the treasury bureau of statistics from an analysis of the international commerce of the principal countries of the world, an analysis which it has made for use in conjunction with its forthcoming volume on our commerce in manufactures.

The rapid growth in the exportation of manufactures from the United States—an increase of more than 100 per cent since 1895—has led the bureau of statistics to the preparation of an elaborate statement of the distribution of manufactures showing the value of every important manufactured article exported in each year from 1890 to 1902 and every country to which each article was sent during the period from 1892 to 1902, also the total value of American manufactures sent to each country of the world in each year during that term. In considering the question of the distribution of our manufactures, the consuming power of the various countries and the production and exports of the other manufacturing countries of the world are subjects of interest, and the bureau of statistics therefore presents in conjunction with its statement of our own exportations of manufactures, statements of the importations, production, and distribution of manufactures by the principal countries of the world.

The imports and exports of manufactures into and from 26 principal countries of the world are given, and estimating the remaining countries, the bureau states the grand total of manufactures entering into international commerce at about four billions of dollars per annum. Of this the United Kingdom supplies one billion dollars, or 25 per cent; Germany supplies 20 per cent; France about 12 per cent; the United States, 10 per cent, and Netherlands about 6 per cent. Curiously, the nations which are the largest importers of manufactures are also the largest exporters of manufactures, this being due in part to the fact that much of the material which they use in manufacturing is produced in other countries and imported in the first stage of manufacture, while other manufactures imported are composed of articles produced in other parts of the world and not produced in the countries in question. In the case of the United Kingdom, for example, which imports 7.5 million dollars worth of manufactures annually, 36 millions represents the value of copper, chiefly imported from the United States in the form of pigs and bars, the first process of manufacture; 65 million dollars, manufactures of silk, of which the material is not produced in the United Kingdom; 63 million dollars wool, much of which is imported in the first stage of manufacture; 67 million dollars foods and drinks, chiefly in the first stage of manufacture; and material for use in manufacturing.

Exportation of manufactures exceeds importation of manufactures in United Kingdom, Germany, France, the United States, Austria-Hungary, Belgium, and Switzerland, respectively; while in all other countries of the world importation of manufactures exceeds exportation of manufactures. Manufactures form 80 per cent of the exports of Switzerland, 78 per cent of the exports of the United Kingdom and Germany, respectively; 82 per cent of those of France; 50 per cent of those of Belgium; 48 per cent of those of Austria-Hungary; 47 per cent of those of Japan; 41 per cent of those of Sweden, and 30 per cent of those of the United States.

Turning to the import side, it is found that manufactures form 76 per cent of the importations into Australia; 68 per cent of those into Argentina; 57 per cent of the imports of Canada; 52 per cent of those of Japan; 33 per cent of those of the United States; and 24 per cent of those of the United Kingdom and Germany, respectively.

CANNOT INTERFERE.

Washington, May 21.—Another large batch of resolutions came to the state department yesterday all relating to the Jewish massacre at Kishineff. The department is acknowledging in proper terms the receipt of all these with promises of consideration. As the Russian government appears to have done what it could to restore order in the disturbed section and seems to be punishing the perpetrators of the outrages officially there is said to be no ground for United States intervention.

WANTS BILL PERMITTING HIM

To Build a Railroad Into Bank of England. Willing to Offer Inducements to Borough Councils Along Route.

New York, May 21.—There are indications that J. P. Morgan is going to turn his attention chiefly to England for sometime to come, says a London dispatch to the Press.

Since his arrival in England, four weeks ago, he has been working with tremendous zeal on his new scheme for building an under ground electric line from the bank of England, north-east towards Waltham, at a cost of $70,000,000. The bill authorizing the route of Parliament to which it had been referred ten days ago. It will, however, come before Parliament again next week, but in another form, and will, it is expected, go through.

LOSS WAS LARGE.

Lincoln, Neb., May 21.—The fire that started shortly before noon yesterday in the Brownell block, a four story office building in Eleventh street, between O and N streets, gutted that structure, caused a loss estimated at $150,000. The heaviest individual loss is Carl Funke, crockery, $25,000. The fire started in the cellar of Funke's store by a clerk dropping a lighted lamp which caught a large pile of straw used for packing. The smoke became so dense and the heat so intense that the firemen for a time were unable to get within a block of the fire. Two clerks in the Funke store reported missing were unhurt. Fifteen firemen were overcome temporarily by smoke and the intense heat and taken to the hospital, but it is not believed the condition of any of them is serious.

End of One of the Most Sen- sational Suits Ever Tried

In the United States Circuit Court Which Decided the Ownership of Valuable Pittsburg Realty.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 21.—The end of one of the most sensational cases ever tried in the United States circuit court, came today, when the jury in the case of Beverly Robinson against Robert S. Stephenson and others, returned a verdict for the defendants. The case was for 18 feet of property in Wood street, worth about $100,000, and involved the paternity of a child. The plaintiff claimed title through a child which he alleged was born to his wife, who was his cousin, Miss Katherine Vera Robinson. They were married Dec. 1896, and it is alleged that the child was born in March 1897, in Omaha, where they had gone to avoid publicity. Robinson and his wife were accompanied to Omaha by Mrs. David Gregg Metheny, sister of Mrs. Robinson. The family came east after the birth of the child, and in the summer of 1898, they spent several weeks at Fairhaven, Vt. One day Mrs. Metheny was seized with convulsions and died very suddenly. The next morning, Mrs. Robinson and the child were dead, both having been shot. The suicide or murder of the woman and the murder of the child, were testified to during the trial of the case. The defense was that the child was not the child of Mrs. Robinson, but was the child of Mrs. Metheny. Metheny is one of the defendants, and the verdict gives him the title through the child born to his wife. Robinson gave positive testimony that the child was born to his wife and that she had nursed the baby naturally. This latter fact was also testified to by other witnesses.

On the other hand a sister of Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Metheny was present in the room when the child was born, and swore that it was the child of Mrs. Metheny. She admitted that she had identified Mrs. Metheny to the doctor as Mrs. Robinson, and for that reason, the doctor had believed that the child was that of Mrs. Robinson, whom he visited professionally.

Five Terrific Gas Explosions This Afternoon, Injure Four Persons, One Fatally. Tanks Blown in All Directions.

New York, May 21.—A fire started today in one of seven gas houses at 155th street and Sheridan avenue. There were five explosions. Three persons were badly injured, one of them John Weyler, a machinist, fatally. The fire communicated to a carpenter shop, and several Pullman cars. The explosions occurred at intervals, of one or two minutes and were heard all over the Bronx. The oil tank which exploded was located opposite 155th street. In it, the gas was made with, which the cars are lighted. The tank was about 40 feet in diameter, 30 feet high and contained nearly 200,000 gallons of oil. The fire shot one hundred feet into the air. An adjacent building used as a factory was totally destroyed as was a repair shop near by which was 20 by 50 feet in size. The firemen saved the large machine shop. The origin of the fire is not yet explained, but from a report, it is said that the fire started in a number of tar barrels. Workmen

THE MARKETS.

New York, May 21.—The reduction of the bank of England discount rate, gave strength to the American department in London, in connection with the general stock market. There were many advances here in response, but the higher level met heavy selling, and prices were not maintained. The first sale of St. Paul was 3,100 shares at a recovery of 3/4 from last night, but the next sale of 2,100 shares at a relapse to last night's level. Dealings in Atchison were in 1,000 share lots at an advance of 1/4 and in Union Pacific at a decline of 3/4. A rise of 3/4 in Reading measured the largest gain. A number of important stocks opened lower. Toledo, St. Louis and Western lost a point.
Enormous selling orders encountered all efforts to support prices and forced the level of the market back to or below last night, and to low record figures for the movement. St. Paul was the pivotal stock, and when it broke rapidly to 152 1/2, the downward plunge began in St. Paul, Canadian Pacific, Amalgamated, Colorado Fuel and United States Steel preferred and several others of less prominence. Lackawanna showed a gain at one time of 2 points, and Tenn. Coal and Metropolitan Street Railway. Southern Pacific, Atchison and Reading received the strongest support. With the working off of selling orders the determined support became effective and full recoveries were made. Atchison and Reading rose nearly a point over last night.
When the decline was once arrested, the shorts covered freely, and there was some eager buying in the effort to secure long stock at the low level. Besides Reading, which gained 1 5/8 and Atchison there were recoveries of a point or more, from yesterday, in the Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Northwestern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Wabash.
Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, St. Louis, Southern preferred, and Colorado and Southern Louisville, Rock Island preferred and Brooklyn Transit, Delaware and Hudson rose 3 and St. Louis preferred lost 3 1/4. The market became dull at the recovery. Bonds were irregular at noon.

WIND

Not Favorable for Giving the Defender a Test.

Reliance and Columbia Got Away at 2:30 O'clock This Afternoon.

Glencoe, N. Y., May 21.—Early preparations were made today on board the two American 90 foot sloops, the Columbia, twice defender of the America's cup, and the Reliance, the latest aspirant, for the test of their relative fitness to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's third venture, the Shamrock III. They were to sail over a measured course in the sound. Although the absence of the Constitution which is undergoing repairs, somewhat marred the interest in today's race, still there were plenty of yachting enthusiasts who came from New York to see the other boat. The early arrivals however, did not find racing conditions particularly favorable. At 8 o'clock, four hours before the time fixed for the start, the waters of the sound, showed not even a ripple, and no where was the slightest trace of a breeze.

The gun was fired at 11:50. The Columbia immediately broke out her head sails, and the two yachts began jockeying for the start. The Columbia seemed to move more briskly than the Reliance, and the two boats moved to and fro in the light air to get their positions for the start. Ten minutes later, however, the committee boat signaled that the start would be postponed until later. The wind was so streaky that the committee wished to wait for a steadier breeze. As the two yachts stood together, the Reliance, with her immense high rig towered far above the Columbia. At 12:45 p. m., the boats were still waiting for the wind, of which there seemed little prospect. During the preliminary maneuvering, the Columbia seemed to be holding the Reliance well.

Later.
The yachts started at 2:20, the actual starting time was Reliance 1:57:30; Columbia 1:58:40. The Reliance apparently gained on the Columbia. The wind was very light.

crossed her lead, when the yachts were passing Peacock point, about two miles from the starting line. After passing the point, the wind seemed to fall away entirely, and the yachts were almost motionless.

The yachts have gone about five miles by 3:15. The Reliance was then five hundred yards ahead.

CLOSING DAY OF CELEBRATION

Saw a Tremendous Outpouring of People. Pyrothentic Display Tonight.

Chillicothe O May 21—The second closing day of the Centennial celebration of Ohio's statehood opened with largely increased attendance and fine weather. Apparently the entire population of Ross county flocked to Chillicothe. Trains from all directions came in crowded. The business men's club of Cincinnati escorted by the Lytle Greys because the guests of the local Elks and the Campbell light guards respectively. The great tent was wholly inadequate today. General L R Brinkerhoff presided. Thomas Kwing Jr of New York city spoke on "The Ohio Presidents." S S Knaben shue of the Toledo Blade spoke of "The Press of Ohio." Prof W H Venable of Cincinnati read a paper on "Ohio Literary Men and Women" and Bishop C C McCabe of Omaha discussed "Religious Influences in Ohio." The programme for the afternoon included the military and civic parade, the great spectacular feature of the occasion reviewed from a stand in front of the court house and at 4 o'clock a reception to distinguished women to the woman's centennial committee. The whole affair closes with an elaborate display of fireworks in the city park.

Chillicothe O May 21—(Special Correspondence)—Chillicothe beautiful is the briefest expression one might use in describing what the old capitol has looked like these two days. It is a gorgeous flower bed set down in the midst of a green valley which defies competition. Every citizen has proven loyal to the occasion and there isn't a home even to the extreme borders which isn't decorated with the colors of American patriotism.

The red white and blue was the keynote which prompted everybody to stand by a reputation which was established 100 years ago and arches festoons and old glory were installed wherever there was room for a breeze to cause a flutter.

Many of the schemes for decoration were simple, dignified and yet of sufficient elaborateness to attract praise on every hand. Wednesday the crowd poured in from every quarter and the question of entertainment was brought down to the point where it required close attention to detail. The visiting members of the press were not wanting as elaborate arrangements were made for their entertainment and every facility was at hand to assist them in the work of keeping their respective papers posted on the event. There was nothing overlooked in the way of offering comforts after the day's work was done and the close of Wednesday's program found Cincinnati hall fixed out in grand array for a banquet which fifty rows of paper men of the state enjoyed.

Naturally a program arranged far in advance of the occasion was liable to change and while there were several disappointments there was nothing which detracted materially from the entertainment of those who crowded the mammoth tent erected in the handsome city park. The address of particular significance was the one delivered by Senator Foraker and as it was one from which all reference to political issues was stricken the applause was spontaneous.

Gov Nash who is far from well and not equal in voice to the demand made by such an expanse of faces resigned the chair of presiding officer to Gen Warren Keifer who proved to be a most excellent master of ceremonies. The addresses were mostly of historical character and pleased everybody.

There was a disappointment because of the non-appearance of ex governor Campbell who wired at the last moment that he was unable to attend on account of illness. He was looked upon as one of the centennial's distinguished guests and no one was more anxious to see him than Dr S A Baxter who registered with Mrs Baxter at the Warner house yesterday. When the latter's presence was known he was visited by Hon Albert Douglas a candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Senator Foraker and other distinguished citizens and guests.

Preliminary to the exercises in the afternoon at the park a scene was enacted at the court house which bears especially on the celebration. The presentation of the plaster medal of Governor Tiffin the first governor of the new state was made by Miss Anna Cook a granddaughter of that once distinguished citizen.

A Few Side Lights

Every home in the city has been thrown open to the entertainment of guests. Marcus A Hanna is being entertained by Hon W H Wiggins. Gen Grosvener by Gen Jao C En tuckin. Senator Foraker by Hon Al bert Douglas. Judge Good of Virginia by Hon I T Neal, once Ohio's candidate for Governor on the democratic ticket. ex Governor Bushnell by Hon Archibald Mayo. Gen Warren Keifer by Gen S H Hurst and Murat Hallstead by Mayor Wallace Yaple.

There is some political significance in the entertainment of the two senators from Ohio. Senator Foraker who is at the home of Albert Douglas shows a leaning of one of the gubernatorial candidates toward the Foraker element. It is openly declared here that Mr Douglas has given up hopes of landing the nomination conceding the place to Gen Keifer but says his name will go before the convention. Senator Hanna is entertained at the home of Hon W H Wiggins and the latter has a deadlock at Circleville with Luther B Yaple in an effort to land the nomination for the common pleas judgeship.

Hon James L Zimmerman of Springfield is a guest not to be overlooked. He stated to the Times Democrat correspondent today that he would positively be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the democratic ticket.

sloner in the case against the prisoner, Wilson, who was arrested here recently on complaint of the postal authorities.

A number of local sports will go to Toledo, this afternoon, to witness the wrestling match between Bobby Reakes and Harvey Parker. The contest will be held at the Savoy theatre.

Mr Ellis Bartholomew, the moving spirit in the Toledo, Springfield and Cincinnati Electric Railway, was in the city yesterday and expressed himself confident that within 90 days cars would be running east over the line from this city.

The Choral Society will meet this evening for practice instead of tomorrow evening.

Messrs J W Shanahan L J Kepler Wilbur Fisk and C A Graham executive committee of the Allen county fair board went to Ottawa today to inspect the educational building on the Putnam county fair grounds.

SHE WILL GO BACK TO IRELAND

Pensioned for Life by Kind Hearted Mistress, in Whose Service She Was when Shot
by Another Servant.

New York, May 21.—Through the generosity of Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, her invalid servant, Miss Lizzie Connell, will spend the remainder of her days in her native home, in Ireland, supported as long as she lives by her American friend. Miss Connell was shot by Daniel Harkins, a gardener on the estate of Mrs. Huntington at Throg's Neck, six months ago. Harkins suspected that the young woman, who was engaged to be married was trying to oust him from his position so that her intended husband could have it. He shot her three times.

The young woman spent several weeks at the home of Mrs. Huntington, and was then removed to a hospital. When Miss Connell was discharged from the hospital, she was paralyzed. Recently Miss Connell expressed a desire to go home to Ireland. Mrs. Huntington agreed to pay all her expenses and to forward to her $25 a month as long as she lived.

PAINFUL

Injuries Sustained by Eleven Year Old Boy.

Mrs. W. E. Cummins and Grandson
Experienced an Exciting Runaway This Morning.

About 9:30 o'clock this morning, Mrs. W. E. Cummins and her eleven year old grandson, Ralph Hummel, residing 7 miles southeast of the city, in Perry township, experienced an exciting runaway in which the boy sustained some very painful injuries. They had driven to the city with a horse and buggy, and when near the railroad crossing on St. Johns avenue, the animal became frightened from some unknown cause, and started to run at full speed. The horse was wholly unmanageable, and ran to the corner of Central avenue and Market street, and fell upon the sidewalk in front of the Hercules Trench Co.'s office. Both Mrs. Cummins and the youth were thrown violently out of the buggy, and the boy fell under the frightened horse. His face and forehead were badly cut and bruised, and his leg was more or less bruised, but none of his injuries were even serious. Mrs. Cummins was only slightly bruised, and the buggy was not seriously damaged.

The team will probably meet for practice three or four times a week prior to sailing.

WEDDING IN HIGH LIFE.

New York, May 21.—In the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, Miss Harriet Taylor, the only daughter of Henry A. C. Taylor, was married to Count Giuseppe Della Ghiordeca, honorary attaché of the Italian embassy at Washington, yesterday, at the home of her father in this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Farry, of Brooklyn. Miss Albertina Taylor Whitcomb, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. There were no bridesmaids, or ushers. The bridegroom was attended as best man by Signor Des Planches, the Italian ambassador at Washington. Early in June they will sail for Europe, returning in the autumn to take up their residence in Washington.

THIS SIDE OF THE GAP

By ELLIOT WALKER

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

"You're something new on your mind, Bud; I know it."

Rose Copley's clinging fingers held her husband fast. "Killian will do you nothing but harm, Bud. Why do you go with him?" The moonlight glinted through the poplar leaves sparkling on gathering tears.

"Pshaw, Rosie, Tim's all right. We've long worked on the section together. I must see him tonight and find out if Maxey will take us on again. That's his whistle now."

He shook her off impatiently and strode off, turning his head to call: "Go in and tend to baby. I'll soon be back."

The woman sighed, wiped her eyes and stepped up the path to the small brown cottage. She glanced at the child slumbering peacefully in his crib, moved about uneasily and again stood at the door, her black eyes straining into the darkness.

"I cannot settle down," she mused. "Too old Bud! He never touched the tools, and it's two weeks since they laid him off. Dear me! I wish I could forget that dream. Two nights running I've dreamed it. The roar and tremble and crash and screams. I can't remember the place and faces, but they were familiar at the time. Pshaw! I'm upset and nervous about things, and the 11 o'clock tearing through was the cause, I guess."

With her easy, good natured husband and the baby, Rose thought herself a lucky woman. Only recently Bud had been irritable at times. The mystery of the missing tools was yet to be cleared up. A wrench had been found in Killian's room, and Bud was with him at the tool house the night before. "I've no business to bother him," she thought repentantly.

Nervously she waited while the minutes crept along, then with sudden decision picked up her gray shawl and stepped to the crib in the corner. "Baby will sleep. I've simply got to get him home," she whispered. "It's nearly half past 10. What does all me to feel so? There's his revolver on the mantle. Yes; I'll take it just for company." She locked the door and glided down the road.

"Hullo, Bud!"

"Hullo, Tim! Who are your friends?"

"A couple of new men. Mr. Lutz—Mr. Copley. Mr. Copley Mr. Grayle. My pal, boys."

The men shook hands in the shade of the great elm.

"Section work?" interrogated Bud.

"Yes, Maxey's put us on, Tim, here. I knowed well in the Albany yards. Come on, Mike. I guess we can find the place. The strangers shifted back from the moonlight.

"What's up?" asked Copley.

Killian answered him: "Rail road this side of the gap. Let's go down and show them. We've nothing on hand, and it's a dark spot for green men. The boss said he's sent the tools on a hand car, and they're in the ditch. It's only a few minutes' job. Come." He put his hand on Bud's arm.

Upon the track Killian dropped behind with Copley.

"Bud," he growled, "we're dashed!"

"What?" The other halted.

"Fact! I've got your notice. Your turn tomorrow."

"It's an infernal outrage," cursed Copley angrily. "In all the years I've worked they never had a complaint. What'll I do? I'm married and settled here. I can't move."

Killian began to swear. "The d—d corporation. I'd like to see 'em in trouble."

"By Jove, I would," Copley stammered almost despairingly.

The moon in sudden brilliance glittered upon the shining rails, curving into the ravine beyond. Ahead and seventy feet below the river brawled against the abutments of the bridge.

"Good!" muttered Killian. "We'll get even, eh?"

Bud did not reply. His brain was whirling. "Rose—the baby—the happy little home." He staggered on.

The track curved sharply just this side of the gap. There waited their companions.

"The crowbar, Mike, Grayle, you help him," Copley, examining the nearby rails, did not heed Killian's voice so full of import. On his knees, he looked up. "Nothing spread here, boys, that I see."

The others came close with hard faces. "There will be," spoke Killian grimly. "You're in on this, Bud. No fooling! We'll get even and more pickings than would come to us in years of slaving. No one will suspect us. We chaps will be miles away by morning. You can take your time. Anyway, you're in on it."

But the other was regarding him in horror. "For God's sake, Tim!" he gasped. "You're fooling! No! You dirty devil, let me up! Help! Help! A-a-h!"

"Hilt him again, Grayle! There, that settles the fool! I thought he had more sand. Why did I bring him? Thought he might take hold, and I wanted his mouth shut, if he didn't. What a yell he let out. Lie low for awhile. There is time enough."

He kicked the senseless form, and the three worthies secreted themselves behind a bowlder. Killian whispered: "Wait ten minutes; then we'll do the trick—lay him where he'll get hit, and folks 'll think he's done it. See?" A pause, then another whisper—"He got the woman I wanted, blast him!"

Mr. Grayle nudged Mr. Lutz.

About a quarter of 11 the men stole out. A minute's hard work with the crowbar, and the rail lifted. "Off to this side a bit, boys. That's right. Oh, oh!"

Three splits of flame from a bush of spruce thirty feet away—"Crack! Crack! Crack!" Timothy Killian threw up his arms, collapsed and rolled over, clutching the gravel. Grayle clapped a hand to his shoulder, then dashed into the undergrowth after his companion.

A woman came cautiously forward, peered about and fell upon her knees in the ditch. Then she screamed, and again the revolver echoed among the hills. From the station only a quarter of a mile away men came running with lanterns and cries.

Maxey, the section foreman, was in the van. Now in the center of the track stood a shouting figure. "Go back! Go back! Stop the express! Stop it, I say!"

"It's Rose Copley, boys!" cried Maxey. "Something's wrong. Run; for heaven's sake, run! That's her whistle now."

The roar of the heavy passenger train sobbed to a rumble, then to a panting stop not fifty feet from the excited group. Through the sleepers spread the ominous rumor. People poured out.

"A doctor? Yes, two of them! Well, hurry up! There was work for both."

"Who was the girl? Was that her husband? What was the story anyway?"

Expressions of horror, wrath and admiration; a fat man busy with a hat; a short speech mingled with sounds of hammering; "All aboard!" a scramble, and the great coaches swung slowly on in the glory of the summer night and crossed the gap.

Copley's first word was for the train. He fell back, thanking God. Then he groped for the hand that had saved.

"He wants to speak to you, Mr. Maxey," sobbed Rose, shedding her first tears.

The rough railroad man bent down, his own eyes streaming. "What is it, my boy?"

"Can't—you—take—me—back? I never touched—the tools. Tim said you—"

"Take you back! Never thought of letting you go! Why, you're my best man, Bud. Bad company, that's all. You're quit of it now."

He turned, shaking a savage fist at the limp form on the hand car. "Better for him, I guess, if Rose's bullet had struck an inch lower."

More Curiosity.

A well known judge, who is as famous for his wit as for his competency, was much disturbed in mind by his tendency to ever increasing stoutness.

He tried many remedies, but without any success. At length a friend suggested that he should take a course of treatment at certain hot springs.

He immediately set out for the place, sojourned for a few weeks at it, managed to get rid of a good deal of his superfluous flesh and returned home in a most happy and jovial frame of mind.

On the first morning after his return, when he was wending his way to the courthouse, he came to the butcher's shop where his family were supplied with meat. Marching inside, he said: "Cut me off twenty pounds of pork."

The butcher sharpened his knife and at once complied. The judge looked at the meat for a minute or two and then walked off.

"Shall I send the pork to your house?" inquired the butcher, who felt that the judge had overlooked instructions.

"Oh, no," was the reply given with a smile; "I don't want it. I have fallen off just twenty pounds, and I only wanted to have an idea of how much it was."—St. Louis Republic.

Greatest World Power.

An idea is the greatest power in the world. Ideas have moved armies, made nations and created civilizations. Just as surely ideas tangibly affect our immediate material surroundings. The recognition of this truth is destined to revolutionize philosophies within the next few generations. Its far-reaching results will constitute the revelation of the twentieth century, says Vim.

One in Bethlehem of Judaea enunciated the truth many years ago when he taught what faith would accomplish. We of succeeding centuries reiterated the divine message as the merest platitude, utterly failing to comprehend its greater meaning. Now we find ourselves on the verge of an awakening to the true significance of thought force.

This much we already know—that it is a mystery hovering on the border land between the material and the spiritual, to be approached with the reverent investigation which the inspired man of science always brings to bear on the wonders of the universe.

Gallant Victor Hugo.

During the latter years of his long life Victor Hugo was very fond of surveying mankind from the vantage ground of the top of an omnibus. He used to make long excursions through the gay city perched on the top of the hotly bus, which he seemed to prefer to any other vehicle. An amusing and characteristic anecdote of the great poet, who was most courteous and attentive to the lovely sex, is related by a review. One fine day, as he was enjoying a ride under these conditions, a fascinating young woman climbed up to the summit of the tram car on which he was seated and steered her way toward the only vacant place, which happened to be the one next to him. She was about to take possession of it when a sudden jolt sent her instead into Victor Hugo's lap. As soon as she had recovered herself the pretty girl turned to the poet and, her fair cheeks suffused with crimson, said, "And I, beg your pardon, monsieur." "And I," he replied gallantly, "thank you, madame."

HOME MISSION SOCIETY.

Buffalo, May 20.—The seventy-first annual meeting of the American Baptist Home Mission society has opened here. In his annual address President M. M. Thresher said the society would be obliged to reduce the rate of interest charged for loans to building committees of churches in the west from 6 to 5 per cent.

A striking reference to the society's work was contained in a statement by secretary Morehouse's report that the New England states themselves now because of their large foreign population constituted a missionary field. This, it was said was wholly unanticipated by the founder's of the society.

RENEWED DISTURBANCES.

Vienna, May 21.—The commemoration of the anniversary of the death of Jellico the former Ban of Croatia, was the occasion for renewed disturbances at Agram, capital of Croatia, yesterday. A crowd stoned the police and thirty-five arrests were made and there are over two thousand prisoners according to a report, in Croatian jails, and more are expected. The local governing bodies at Jaska, Caulices, Seneca and Draga have been dissolved.

SHOT SEED

From Gun to Plant a Mountain.

On the Duke of Athol's estate was a bare, unsightly crag, the rocks of which were inaccessible to climbers. Tin canisters were loaded with tree seeds and fired from a cannon against the face of the crag, scattering their fruitful contents among the rocky crevices. In the course of years these barren heights were crowned with trees of luxuriant growth. Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound Tablets are seeds of health, which are being fired against the rocky ramparts of disease. Rheumatism, constipation, catarrh and all diseases of the blood yield to their wonderful curative powers. 30 days treatment 25 cents. druggists.
